In an effort to join liked minded professionals the Parent TRAIN recently held its first round table discussion group.

The response was outstanding and we had professionals from a variety of therapeutic backgrounds come to share their resources. The format consisted of introductions and summaries of services each participant offered. The informative and collaborative discussions that followed were more than we could have hoped for. Several participants found just the right contact for particular families they were in trying to assist, while others have gone on to provide each other with trainings and form therapeutic groups together.

Please contact us if are interested in future gatherings to expand your own (or your agencies) resources!
